

Usage Guidelines

Last updated: 19 September 2024

To ensure our offerings function optimally, we require your cooperation in using them responsibly.

This document outlines what we consider improper use of our offerings. We retain the right to act against behavior that contradicts the spirit of these guidelines, even if not explicitly stated herein. The term "offerings" encompasses all Screen Studio-owned or operated products, websites, subdomains, pages, and cloud services.

Prohibited Actions:

1. System Integrity Violations

- Compromising our systems' security or operation
- Unauthorized access attempts or security circumvention
- Altering or impairing our offerings' functionality
- Decoding transmissions to or from our servers
- Overloading our infrastructure with excessive requests or resource consumption

2. Unlawful Activities

- Misrepresenting identity or content origin
- Violating others' privacy or collecting personal information without consent
- Harassment, threats, or intimidation
- Using our offerings for illegal purposes or in violation of any laws
- Unauthorized access methods (e.g., scraping)

- Misuse of Screen Studio's or suppliers' trademarks
- Using offerings for critical alert systems related to health or safety
- Promoting discriminatory practices

3. Inappropriate Communications

- Generating spam or chain letters
- Unauthorized commercial solicitation of our users
- Disparaging Screen Studio or its affiliates
- Promoting third-party products without permission

4. Unacceptable Content

- Violating intellectual property rights
- Sharing false, misleading, or harmful content
- Posting obscene, defamatory, or hateful material
- Encouraging violence or illegal activities
- Discriminatory content
- Malicious code or exploits
- Previously removed content

"Content" refers to any information or material you create, upload, or provide through our offerings, including submissions you authorize others to make.

Screen Studio reserves the right to interpret these guidelines and take appropriate action, including removing content or terminating accounts, without prior notice if violations occur. Users agree to cooperate in investigating and remedying violations.